Resham Patle, Technical Writer

As an IT student with a passion for digital marketing and content writing, I have developed a unique set of skills that allows me to bring value to any organization. With a strong foundation in IT, coupled with coursework in digital marketing and content writing, I am able to combine technical expertise with creative skills to achieve business objectives.

One of my key strengths is my communication skills. As an IT professional, I understand the importance of clear and effective communication when working on projects with team members. I am able to translate technical jargon into language that is easy for non-technical to understand, making it easier to align project goals and objectives.
